New Maryland state law prohibits newspaper theft

by Lauren Weis, staff writer

A rash of newspaper thefts recently plagued the campuses of several Maryland Universities. In response to these thefts the Maryland State Legislature passed a bill that will make newspaper theft a crime.

On Dec. 14, 1993, 2,500-3,000 copies of the University of Maryland Baltimore County's student paper, The Retriever, were confiscated by members of the UMBC Black Student Union.

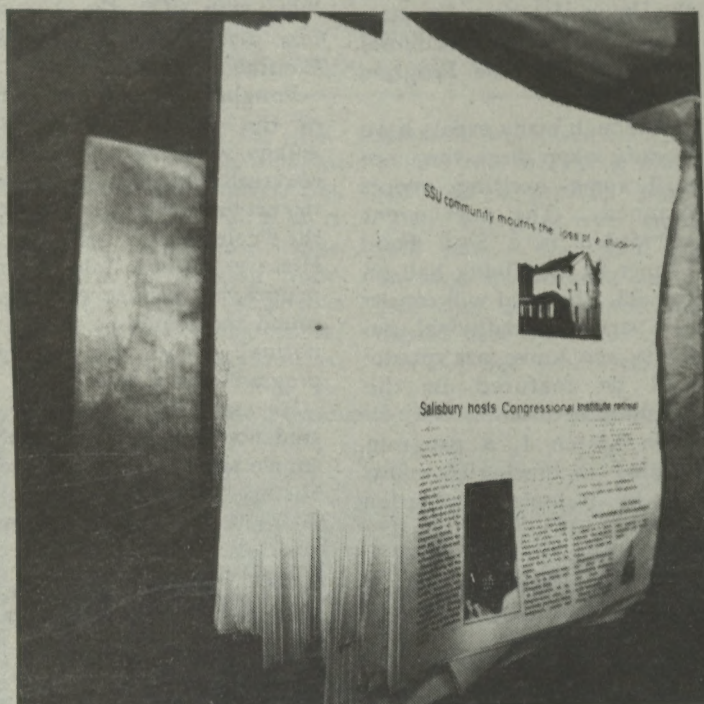

Louise White, UMBC Spokeswoman, called the newspaper seizure "a protest, not theft." The incident was sparked by a controversial editorial that ran on The Retriever's opinion page. The column, which was written by a staff writer, criticized the verdict in the Reginald Denny trial and made comments deemed by some as offensive to African-Americans.

The Diamondback, the official student newspaper of the University of Maryland College Park, was also confiscated by students. Drew Weaver, Diamondback Editor-in-Chief, testified before a Maryland Senate committee that on Nov. 1, 1993 approximately 10,000 issues of the publication were taken in protest of the alleged "racist nature" of the newspaper.

Two suspects were arraigned, but the case was dropped by the State's Attorney's Office due to a "lack of evidence." The suspects, however, must still go before the UMCP Office of Judicial Programs, and face expulsion if found guilty.

In response to these thefts, the Maryland Legislature passed two bills, Senate bill 183 and House bill 198, which prohibit the destruction or confiscation of free publications for the purpose of

New GALA policy opens all meetings

by Garrett McGlothlin, staff writer

Salisbury State's Gay and Lesbian Alliance (GALA) has changed its policy to open their meetings to everyone who is interested in coming, regardless of their sexual orientation.

Previously, GALA invited being exclusive, but that was not the case," said Polly Stewart, one of GALA's faculty advisors.

These monthly meetings were held so that gays and lesbians could talk about things that they might not want to share with everyone.

Stewart said that at the group's beginning in 1988 members wished to remain low key, but they have

"I don't walk around all day thinking 'Oh-no, I'm gay, I'm gay!' any more than someone would walk around thinking 'Oh-no, I'm straight, I'm straight!' It is a small part of myself."

Chances are that most students know someone who is gay.

"There is hardly anyone whose life has not been touched by a gay or lesbian person," said Stewart. "For a non-gay person to come to our meeting would be to acknowledge that, yes, there are gay people in the world."

Because gays and lesbians are often the victims of discrimination or acts of intolerance, they may carry with them the stigma that has been projected upon them by others.

"Stigmatized people need to develop their innate dignity and worth and GALA can help," said Stewart.

GALA is also concerned with educating the SSU community. Last semester, they offered time to classes when invited to speak. They also spoke at freshman orientation meetings.

"Last year we helped a student who had recently learned that his good friend was gay. We tried to help him understand it and to appreciate his friends honesty and respect that trust. I think it really went well," said Turner.

The decision to invite heterosexuals to attend any of the meetings is an attempt by GALA to increase awareness within the heterosexual population and to foster good relations between people of differing sexual orientations.

The open meetings also serve as a reminder that, while different, gays and non-gays are part of the same community.

The main reason for having heterosexual people involved in GALA, said Turner, is that "non-gay support is an important part of GALA. Active interest from non-gay people is good for gays. Also, straight people do have interest in gay issues."

This semester, members of GALA plan to continue to educate others about homosexuality.

"My strongest wish is to educate," said Stewart. "That is the alliance's greatest contribution. We want to educate people and to reduce people's anxiety about gay and lesbian issues."

The first meeting of the Gay and Lesbian Alliance will be held in the Manokin room of the University Center on Tuesday, Feb. 22 at 6 pm.

"I don't walk around all day thinking 'Oh-no, I'm gay, I'm gay!'" heterosexual individuals to their meetings, but they reserved one meeting per month for just gay and lesbian students.

"We had a lot of people who felt it was against the University's policy [to hold restricted meetings]. People misinterpreted it that we were subsequently realized that there are issues in life that they have to confront.

GALA wants to breakdown stereotypes the stereotypes about gays and lesbians that exist in society.

"Being gay is not all of what I'm about," said SSU graduate student Joe Turner.

Salisbury State celebrates Black History Month

by Jennifer Evans, staff writer

Since 1976, February has been the month set aside to honor the achievements of African Americans with the celebration of National Afro-American History Month.

This celebration originally started as Negro History Week on February 7, 1926. That particular week was chosen because it coincides with the birthdays of Frederick Douglass and Abraham Lincoln. It was begun by the Association of Afro-American Life and History, or the ASALH.

The ASALH is an organization started in 1915 by Carter G. Woodson. At that time, Woodson thought that prejudice was due to lack of understanding and to misinformation about the race and culture of African Americans.

Education and exploration of the Black race was promoted by the ASALH by presenting historical truth about the African heritage of Black people. It also released information about ancient history and promoted the worthwhile contributions that Blacks made in the founding and development of the United States of America.

Salisbury State University has scheduled many activities to observe this special month. These events are sponsored by the Office of Minority Affairs, the Union of African American Students and the multicultural committee for the Program Board.

Although many events have already taken place, there are still some exciting events planned. The next event scheduled is a Soul Food Dinner in the dining hall on Feb. 23. The meal will consist of a variety of traditional soul foods, and a live jazz quartet will be featured in the Salisbury Room.

On March 1, a program entitled "Embracing Diversity" will be presented by Marlon Smith. Smith is a speaker called a "high tech motivator" and will present his program at 7:30 pm. The location has yet to be announced.

The theater group, Living Dream Inc., will be at SSU on March 10 to present a dramatic play called "What About Black Womyn?" this two act play is a dark comedy by James Chapman portraying the lives of three "womyn" living with AIDS. The play will take place at 7:30 pm in the Caruthers Hall Auditorium.

Vaughn White, coordinator of the Office of Minority Affairs, would like students to also realize that while many of the activities do coincide with the celebration of Black History Month, "there are programs sponsored year round and should be seen as a normal part of the cultural program here at SSU."

He said that he hopes students will not attend for the simple reason of it being Black History Month, but "to help facilitate the education and

by Janet Scouten, staff writer

One out of five adults on the Eastern Shore cannot read well enough to handle the demands of everyday life.

To aid in alleviating this problem, a local program

"Being illiterate doesn't mean you're dumb, it just means that you can't read."

-Linda Parry,

Project Read coordinator

called Project Read offers free one-on-one tutoring for adults.

According to Linda Parry, the Project Read coordinator, "the illiteracy problem is incredibly big," and it isn't going to go away by itself.

Illiteracy is a common problem that results from perfectly understandable reasons, she said.

"Being illiterate doesn't mean you're dumb," explained Parry, "it just means that you can't read."

Project Read works with people who read below a fourth grade level. Parry explained that at the fourth grade reading level "people stop learning to read and start reading to learn."

Under the program, volunteer tutors are matched with adults who want to improve their reading skills. Tutors meet with their student for about three hours each week.

Neither a college education nor prior teaching experience is required to volunteer. However, tutors are required to attend an eight hour training session.

"We don't try to turn people into teaching specialists," said Parry, but the sessions equip volunteers with the knowledge they need to effectively teach adults to read.

Parry said that volunteers need to be able to commit for an entire year.

If someone is interested in volunteering their time, yet is unable to make the year long commitment, there are many other literacy related volunteer opportunities, said Parry.

To request additional information about the program, call 749-3612 or visit the Wicomico County Free Library.

Brrrrr! Students jog naked for the chill of it all

by College Press Service

About 300 male and female students stripped naked and sprinted through 25 degree weather at Princeton University in New Jersey to celebrate the first snowfall of winter, an annual frolic that has earned the disfavor of the administration.

However, that didn't dampen the spirits of runners who skidded around the icy grounds Jan. 4 while clothed spectators cheered and the strains of "Chariots of Fire" wafted from a dormitory window. Joggers in the Nude Olympics took some precautions from the cold, however. They wore shoes, socks, hats, and gloves, and one donned a football helmet.

"It was a mob scene," student Danny Hoffman told The Associated Press. Not all was fun and games, though. Two students were taken to a nearby hospital, one for treatment of extreme intoxication and the other for lacerations of the back and legs. A third student was treated for an ankle injury at the school infirmary.

The nude run has caused some trouble in the past, and university officials have tried to discourage the practice. "It was a lark 10 or 20 years ago, but it's turned into a huge event," said Jacquelyn Savani, a university spokeswoman. "It has lost its innocence and spontaneity."

Many of the students drink heavily before the run to loosen inhibitions and make the cold seem more bearable, she said. But that also leads to dangerous behavior when judgment becomes impaired. Two years ago, two young women were found passed out and naked in the cold after they drank too much. That same year, about two dozen male students dashed through a restaurant, frightening patrons and smashing a large plate-glass window. Local police videotaped the incident, and the young men were later prosecuted.

Last year, a group of naked men pranced through a convenience store and "intimidated" customers. One student was later prosecuted on a shoplifting charge, Savani said.

The Nude Olympics has become widely known that the tabloid television show "Hard Copy" advertised in newspapers for videotape footage of the event, Savani said. "People say to us, 'Well, gee, can't students have a good time anymore?' But the university is struggling with its responsibility to the students reported.

The newspaper, which ran a photograph of the women's backsides, said it was the second annual female streak at the school.

"It takes a lot of courage to do what they're doing," said one male onlooker. "It's cold out here."

As a group of five or so men and the community," she said.

Meanwhile, a group of about 15 University of Pennsylvania women decided to carry on a campus tradition last December by jogging nude through the school's quadrangle in Philadelphia, the Daily Pennsylvanian gathered to witness the 7 a.m. event, the streakers nearly suffered a pre-run panic. "There are guys over there!" said one. "Oh, we'll run anyway," another answered.

So they quickly shed their clothes near the statue of the Rev. George Whitefield and ran screaming around the courtyard. A streaker who was a veteran of the first female streak in 1992 said the event was "a reminder not to take life too seriously."

"This is a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity," she said. "It's exhilarating."

Another male onlooker, who said he was required to attend the event as part of his fraternity initiation, said he respected the women's boldness.

"All the women have my highest admiration," he said. "What they did was pretty amazing."

One male student walked across the courtyard about 10 minutes after the streak said he had no idea what had just happened.

"Get out of here! They were naked?" he asked in disbelief. "Oh, man, I missed it."

Students uncertain about academic dishonesty

by College Press Service

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. -- Students admit to cheating at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, but they say there's too many gray areas about what is considered academic dishonesty, a survey said.

Students said blatant dishonesty such as cheating on an exam is wrong, but they had mixed opinions about collaborating and sharing homework assignment answers. In fact, 56 percent of the students surveyed said they were confused about what constitutes academic dishonesty.

The survey, conducted by the MIT Colloquium Committee, found that almost 45 percent said that copying homework that would not be graded was not considered cheating. Another 45 percent said it was trivial and 10 percent labeled it as serious cheating.

Students were divided about whether it was dishonest to get help from a campus computer consultant for writing the content of a computer program for class.

least once, 45 percent admitted that they misrepresented or fudged data in a laboratory report or research paper, and almost 60 percent admitted to copying another student's homework assignment that was to be graded.

According to Norma

Almost 45 percent [of students surveyed] said that copying homework that would not be graded was not considered cheating.

Almost 80 percent of the students admitted that they had cheated at some point in their college years by either collaborating on homework or copying someone else's homework assignment.

Almost 70 percent said they collaborated on homework at McGaver, a co-author of the study, the surprise was not that students cheat, but which students are cheating since there is a perception that some students get good grades through dishonest means.

"Some people think it's the best and brightest students who cheat, but that's not the case. It's the students with academic difficulties who cheat," she said.

The study also found that the students with lower grade point averages are less likely to ask for assistance and may fall into a pattern of cheating as a way to get by.

McGaver said sophomores, not first-year students, were more likely to cheat. "There seems to be more stress because that's the year they pick their major," she said.

The survey was commissioned after a cheating scandal occurred on the campus in 1990. The scandal occurred when 79 of 250 students taking Introduction to Computers and Engineering Problem Solving were found to have cheated on a homework assignment. Students defended themselves by saying that cheating in one form or another was rampant across the campus. Many of the students said they did not think they had done anything wrong.

censorship. The bills passed respectively on Feb. 10 and Feb. 18 and the law will be effective as of Oct. 1, 1994.

The legislators who sponsored the bills were State Senator Howard Denis (R), Montgomery County and State Representative Samuel Rosenberg (D), Baltimore City. They determined that such legislation was necessary because each individual state's attorney's office differs as to their views of the criminality of censorship by theft.

With the passage of these bills into law, newspaper theft will now be clearly illegal within the state of Maryland, whereas previously the delineation of such a charge was left solely to various county state's attorney's offices.

Although no known newspaper thefts have occurred within the past decade at Salisbury State University, the law will apply to students here, as well as at all Maryland schools.

Let's take a trip: Black in Time

Since coming to SSU, I've come to realize how important it is to be an African American in a predominantly white university. See, coming from a school system where I was part of a majority, racism and sexism weren't a large factor to me. Yet after coming here, I noticed that racism is still growing and surviving in America. Native Americans are ignored, and they lived on this land before Columbus came and "discovered" it. Men and women work equally as hard; but women don't always get the credit they deserve. People of all religious faiths are persecuted. As African-Americans, most of our important contributors are deleted from the books of history that we helped create, in a land where many of our ancestors were brought to against their will. So, in respect to those great men and women, I dedicate this piece of writing.

More than 60 years before Rosa Parks, this woman refused to give up her seat in a railroad car designated for "white only". She became editor of the Memphis Free Speech newspaper. Her writings were feared because of the stress on the horrors of lynching. She won an international reputation by publishing Southern Horrors and The Red Record, the first statistical study of lynching. She is also known for a quote in a letter to President William McKinley, which stated "that nowhere in the civilized world, save in the United States, do men go out in bands of fifty to hunt down, shoot, hang and burn to death a single individual unarmed and absolutely powerless." Who was she? Ida B. Wells, an African-American who died in 1931.

A mathematician and inventor is believed to have made the first wooden clock which was accurate time past the time of his death. He was part of the project that helped design the layout for the nation's capital. And before becoming an advisor to President Thomas Jefferson, he published a treatise on bees and did a mathematical study on the cycle of the seventeen-year locust. Who was he? Benjamin Banneker, an African-American who died on October 9, 1806.

Born Isabella, she was among the best and most famous anti-slavery speakers of her day. Although she had been beaten and stoned, she still touched the souls of people which helped strengthen the abolitionist movement. She even addressed an audience at the White House in October 1864, amongst the members were Abraham Lincoln. Who was she? Sojourner Truth, and African-american who died on November 23, 1883.

While George Washington Carver started with the peanut, this man started with the soybean. He extracted from it an ingredient used to relieve inflammatory arthritis. He founded the Julian Laboratory, consisting of research centers in Chicago, Mexico City, and Guatemala. He was a scientist and medical researcher who found a way to mass produce physotigmine, used to treat glaucoma, and perfected the mass production of sex hormones, which led the way to birth control pills. Who was he? Dr. Percy Lavon Julian, an African-American who died in 1975.

Buried with full military honors, she was a nurse and a spy for the Union Army during the Civil War. To me, she's important because she's the black version of Betsy Ross. If she were to have made a flag, it would have consisted of the names of slaves she helped escape to the north, and it would cover a football field. Referred to as "Moses", she made at least 19 journeys into the South, delivering hundreds of slaves to freedom on the underground railroad. And although it wasn't a real railroad, she was the lead conductor. Who was she? Harriet Tubman, an African-American "strong, brave as a lion, and cunning as a fox" who died on March 10, 1913.

Last but not least, the man responsible for Black History Month. He graduated high school in two years at the age of 20. An ex-coal miner and school teacher, organized the Association for the Study of Negro Life and History. Before earning his doctorate from Harvard, he spent 21 years as head of high schools and colleges in his native West Virginia, the Philippines, and Washington, D.C. He began the observance of Black History Week in 1926 which expanded to a national observance known as Black History Month. Who was he? Carter G. Woodson, an African-American known as the "Father of Negro History" who died on April 13, 1950.

These are some African-Americans that I think are important, yet there are many more. It is important that we as a nation realize that there are many people that helped our nation get to where we are today who weren't white. Those same people have given me the opportunity to attend SSU and meet different people of all races and sexual orientations. To those great African-American pioneers, I say thank-you. Through your struggles and triumphs, I have a tight knit crew who have shown me that athletes are great friends too. I have also gained two little brothers who have shown an only child the meaning of differences and brotherhood. I have met many types of women who have sparked the creative side of my writing to show a more sensitive, powerful side. I've also met faculty and true brothers and sisters who have changed a kid who thought he knew all into a man who wants to know. And most of all, I want to thank you for allowing me to walk in your path and clear the rest of the way for those youth coming behind me. For you see, now is the time for everyone to stop learning "his-story", and learn History.....OUR HISTORY.

Reason for no free yearbooks

First, I would like to apologize to those students who desired a 1992-93 The Evergreen yearbook. I shall explain our situation to you. This was not a normal circumstance for any yearbook to cover two academic years. The reason this happened was that the editor of the 1992 book quit before the book was finished. Second, I would like to explain what we are doing to better our situation.

At the beginning of last semester, we gave away our extra yearbooks. Our contract with Jostens Publishing has been for 500 copies total per year. We send free yearbooks to those seniors who get their portraits taken or have a picture sent to the yearbook office. Those students who do not submit their senior portraits, do not receive a book. The books that we gave away last semester were the extra copies. The reason this happened was only a small number of seniors submitted a senior portrait.

This year we have had an astounding turnout for senior portraits and we had to expand our contract to 800 books. There cannot be any free yearbooks handed out to other students because there are no extras. This expansion allows us to sell books to the other students and deliver them directly to the student's home in September 1994. The price is $ 15.50 and includes the shipping. The deadline for orders is March 25, 1994 (before Spring Break). Checks must be made payable to SSU. Enclose with your check and index card with your permanent mailing address on it. Mail it to SSU Box #3061.

If you have any questions, call the yearbook office X63210 (on campus) and off-campus dial 543-6006 and ask to be transferred to X63210 or stop by

Flyers were offensive

On Tuesday, February 15, 1994 various flyers were placed on the pillars outside of the dining hall. The posters claimed that the Student Government Association was a group of fascists who were associated with the German Swastika. Although we as an SGA believe in a person's right to express their opinions, we found the flyers to be both offensive to the SGA and derogatory in nature. We were also disturbed by the accusations that we do not promote freedom of speech.

The Student Government Association encourages students to inform us about their concerns. Our office is open many hours each week for any students to come by and voice their opinions and we offer open forums every other Sunday night. All are welcome at our meetings. We feel that your attendance would allow you to see how productive the SGA is and that our methods are positive for everyone. We want to know about the invisible factors that exist on this campus.

Not only were we as SGA members offended by the use of the swastika, we found it offensive to the entire student body. We find criticism to be positive but we must remember that the best criticism is constructive. We should always consider others and be especially sensitive when voicing opinions. While we believe in freedom of expression, it is our opinion that it is necessary to consider the feelings of others. Constructive criticism can make us all better; however, in this case the anonymous author should realize that this poster not only insulted the SGA, but it insulted the student body.

The Student Government Association will hold its next Student Voice Assembly on Sunday February 27, 1994 from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. in the Pocomoke Room of the University Center. All members of the student body are invited to come and participate.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Keeping SSU open was dangerous

When preventive laws are passed, and people speak up against the new laws, the argument is frequently, "if we save one life, then the law is a good law." This was the case with both gun laws and seat belt laws.

Frequently in medical technology, there are those who would have no chance of recovery without a new form of medical technique. These techniques are tried and practiced, and the doctors believe that if they "can save one life," then they'll keep trying and practicing.

It is our very nature to protect and preserve life, and we do this, above all, even if it means that we sacrifice in some cases. In addition, all too often, people who make mistakes that directly or indirectly cause loss of life, tend to make the mistake before curtailing the enhanced probability of death.

I find the decision to keep school open on Friday, Feb. 11 to be such a mistake. Even though it is true that most students live on campus, and the bulk of commuters live close to school, the school must consider equally those who commute from longer distances like Ocean City or Cambridge.

Suppose a commuting student were to have lost his/her life in a car accident on Camden Avenue, 10 minutes before class was to begin. I have no doubt that a lot of people, including myself, would hold the school responsible to at least some degree, even if it is indirect responsibility.

Someone from the university was seen on television the next day saying that the decision was made the night before. As we all know, conditions deteriorated rapidly through the night until sunrise, yet the decision had already been made. I find this fact to be reckless.

In addition, it was said on television that the school has had a long term policy of allowing students to make up missed work. This is where I passed the threshold of frustration to anger over the decision. It is absurd to suggest or even imply that there will be an equality in the education of those who weren't able to attend due to weather; for if it were, I'm sure attendance would be far less than it is, and people would just copy notes all the time. It may be true that work may be made up, but something will be lost to the individual who misses class.

Though a situation like this may not occur again during my last year here, I sincerely hope that the administrators reevaluate their positions.

Sincerely,
Steven L. Trostle

The Green Piece

In this world where thirty percent of our energy comes from oil wells that are predicted to run dry in about fifty years, people are searching for reliable and safe energy alternatives.

Increasing energy efficiency is a great way to reduce the demand for environmentally hazardous fossil fuels like oil, coal and gasoline, but reduction is only a short-term solution.

As our energy resources are being depleted, pristine wilderness in the Arctic National Wildlife refuge is under constant threat from oil drillers. We are also spending over 50 billion dollars a year to protect oil wells in the Persian Gulf. As the environmental and monetary costs of fossil fuels increase, people are seeking out alternative energy sources as a long term solution for our energy needs.

Solar power has become one of the most widespread and efficient alternative sources of energy. Solar energy is used for heating or converting sunlight directly into energy. Soon, solar energy will become competitive with the dwindling conventional energy resources. Improvements are constantly made in the effectiveness of converting the sun's energy into an economically and environmentally sound energy source.

Salisbury State University is doing its part to promote the use of solar energy in homes. Several SSU students and faculty, along with an architect are designing a passive solar house that will be built behind the athletic field. The house will be built with large windows facing South to take advantage of the sun's energy. Eventually, four students will be living in the house as an example to the community proving the effectiveness and benefits of using solar energy in everyday life.

Men's Basketball team defeats Chowan, 84-82

by Mike Beardslee, Staff Writer

It was an exciting evening in Maggs Gym on Saturday, February 19, as the men's basketball team downed Chowan College, 84-82, in a game that was every bit as close as the score indicates. Salisbury improved their record to 11-11, reaching the .500 mark after winning 5 of their last 6 games. Chowan dropped to 7-14 with the loss.

Dameon Ross led the way with a career high 46 point effort on 22-46 shooting, including four three-pointers. He also had 3 blocks and four steals, both team highs.

It was a back and forth game for much of the first half. Chowan took the lead at 8-4, but it would prove to be their biggest lead of the entire game. The score was tied 7 times in the first period, as neither team seemed able to gain the upper hand.

The turning point may have been at the very end of the period, where a buzzer-beater three pointer by Chowan's Mark Hall bounced off the rim and the top of the backboard before dropping through the net. Of course, once the ball hits the top of the backboard, it's a turnover, so naturally the fans of SSU and the members of the team were incensed when the officials ruled it a basket, tying the score at 38.

SSU came out in the second half fired up, and in the first three minutes they went on a 10-0 run to pull ahead 48-38. Ward Lambert, the men's basketball coach, attributed it to a better defensive effort. "Our press seemed to work particularly well in the second half."

But it was not enough to keep Chowan down. They inched their way back into the game, and it was 54-49 at the 13:30 mark before Dameon Ross hit two three pointers in a row to send SSU up, 60-49.

Chowan then bricked two free throws, and game looked like it might turn into a blowout.

Unfortunately SSU couldn't put Chowan away. Mike Allen hit a jumper to spark a 5-0 run by Chowan, bringing the score to 60-55 with 10:50 left to play. SSU would again stretch the lead to 9 when John DeRichie hit a trifecta to make it 67-58.

But Chowan responded with another run, bringing the score to 66-70 before Kyle Jefferson threw an alley-oop to Dameon Ross, who dunked it and Jefferson looks for an open man in the game vs. Chowan brought the fans of SSU to their feet.

It seemed like this would be the dagger in the heart of the Chowan beast, but it wasn't enough.

First center Josh Mitchell went down in the second half with a leg injury. Then center Brian King fouled out with 1:43 left to play, leaving the Gulls with a very small front line.

Still, the Gulls had a 84-79 lead, and they went to a spread offense to run time off the clock. They were forced to take a shot, and Chowan rebounded it and took it the other way, where Mike Allen canned a three to make it 84-82 with 23 seconds to play.

SSU then turned the ball over, and Chowan called a timeout with 6.1 seconds to play. SSU buckled down on defense, and Chowan almost didn't get to take a final shot. Mike Allen finally got a decent look at the basket, and heaved up a three with .8 seconds left to play. It bricked off the front of the rim, sending the fans of SSU into a frenzy, and sending Chowan home with another disappointing loss.

Mike Allen lead Chowan College with 20 points, while Mark Hall had 16 points and 13 rebounds. Chowan out-rebounded SSU, 52-43, but they turned the ball over 23 times to SSU's 13. "Turnovers were a key," said Lambert.

Tom Wolfe of SSU had a game high 7 assists, while Kyle Jefferson had 9 points and 11 rebounds for the night. Josh Mitchell scored 12 points in 15 minutes before he was injured.

Salisbury has had to play four games in six days, an exhausting ordeal with their run-and-gun style.

"We played really well in spurts," added Lambert. "It's tough to play back to back games with this kind of system. Our overall shooting percentage has suffered."

Still, it was enough to finish off Chowan, and hopefully there's enough left over to battle Wesley in their home gym on Monday night.

The men's basketball team will play their final home game of the season against Frostburg State on Thursday, February 24, at 7:30. Be there as SSU honors the last home game of the three seniors on the men's team; Dameon Ross, Tom Wolfe, and Jon Evans. The Gulls will finish the season with a visit to Beaver College on Feb. 28.

The lacrosse team practices for the upcoming season defensive and long-stick middies all have real good speed," says Jim Berkman. "The midfield unit as a whole is one of the better groups we've had in recent years."

Last season, SSU stickmen combined for 251 goals, 171 assists, and 422 total points. Salisbury hopes to match or better these statistics in 1994 with the return of first team All-American Coffman (51 goals, 38 assists) and junior transfer Sean Radebaugh. "I think Coffman is an even better player this year. He has become more of a complete attackman," says Berkman.

Transfer Paul Smith, the leading junior-college attackman in the nation in 1992, and freshman Jake Bergey are also expected to make an immediate impact. Senior Trent Wisnaukas and Michael Orten will also add strength and depth.

Goalie Erik Miller, an honorable mention all-American last year, returns after averaging 10.6 saves/game with a .676 save percentage in 14 games. "Erik is one of the top goalies in the nation. He's excellent both in and out of the cage," added Berkman.

In addition to Miller, SSU returns senior Russ Hewitt and junior Tom Murrell who have worked hard in the offseason to give Berkman experienced depth at the position.

The Gulls wind down their preseason this week and will then travel to play Hampden-Sydney on Saturday. Their next game will be on March sixth against Roanoke in Baltimore at noon. In the first home game SSU will face Ohio Wesleyan on March 12 at 1 p.m.

"Overall this is the most fit team I have ever coached," said Berkman. "We have a lot of talent. If the chemistry comes together, this season could be something special."

Shelley has career game

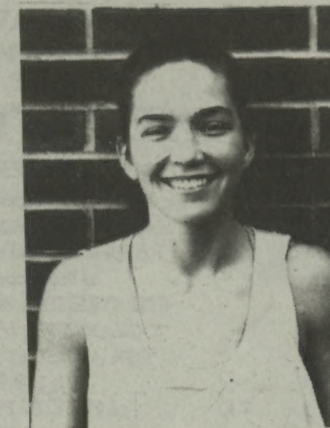

by Joe Herman, Staff Writer

Anyone that has ventured to a Salisbury State women's basketball game has probably seen senior point guard Jenny Shelley sacrificing her body for a ball that most players had already given up on. As a captain for three different sports she is one of the most vocal, determined, and aggressive athletes to ever play at SSU.

Last Saturday Shelley wanted to finish her final home game on a positive note. She responded with a career-high 20 points, dished out three assists, and added four steals to lead SSU to a victory over Wesley. "I've always had a desire to win and prove myself," said Shelley. "If I have to dive for a ball that could win the game, I'll do it."

The Gulls have faced a very difficult season, and have managed to post a 7-12 record. However, that record is a little misleading; 6 of their losses were by a total of 12 points. Since Shelley and co-captain Kim Roth are the only returning upperclassmen on the team, they have had to absorb a lot of the frustration.

"Coach (Benshetler) sets a positive standard at practice," said Shelley. "I've accepted my role and realize that when I'm having a bad day I can't get down on myself because the team is counting on me to stay positive."

Although there are still two games remaining in the basketball season, Shelley is currently one of the co-captains for the women's lacrosse team. She was also captain of the SSU Volleyball team as a sophomore.

During the course of a typical day, Shelley will go to class in the morning, lift from 2-3, play basketball from 3-5, then grab her stick and throw around the lacrosse ball until around 6 p.m. Somewhere in there she finds time to eat and go to class.

Shelley attributes her motivation and determination to her father. He was in the military so her family never lived in the same place for more than two years. She was born in Puerto Rico and has lived in Florida, Ohio, Virginia Beach, and Washington D.C. "On the military bases, there were always organized sports," said Shelley. "Since I moved all the time I learned to be outgoing. Sports have always made it easier to meet people and make friends."

When she isn't playing sports, Shelley concentrates on her 18 credit course load. She is currently a Physics Microelectronics major and after graduation she hopes to move to Jacksonville, Florida for graduate school.

After the basketball season, Shelley plans to dedicate her time to lacrosse. "Lacrosse is still new and exciting to me," says Shelley. In only her second year playing lacrosse, Shelley was named to the all-region second team.

Before Shelley ends her extensive athletic career at SSU she has her sights set on one more goal. "Hopefully we'll make the playoffs this year," said Shelley. Then in a modest way she said, "After playoffs it would be nice to make all-region first team."

Baseball opens at home March 5

by Josh LeBaron, Staff Writer

Salisbury State University baseball coach Deane Deshon is now in his 31st year as head coach for the Gulls. As the 12th winningest active division III coach, with a career record of 471-383-12, Deshon is looking forward to getting the 1994 season started.

SSU is returning eleven lettermen from last year's 12-16 team, which was ranked 14th in the nation in home runs with twenty six for the season. This year's batting lineup looks even better according to Deshon. "Our offensive power was good last year, but I think our lineup is better this season. We really do not have any weak spots. We are pretty solid from one to nine."

Returning players include junior Brian Hollaman, who batted .325 last year while leading SSU in hits (29), runs (17), and RBI's (21). Hollamon was voted as the team's Most Valuable Player last year and was also named as an all-conference selectee in the Eastern States Athletic Conference.

Hollamon admitted that there will be some pressure to perform this year. "Our goal is to make it to the playoffs. We've got some new guys and I know there's going to be some pressure. However, the team is in much better shape this year. Assistant coach Disbennett has come in here and we're doing a lot of things differently. He has made some improvements as far as our conditioning goes and I think it will help us on and off the field."

Deshon's new assistant is 1986 SSU graduate Robb Disbennett. Disbennett was an all-American quarterback for the Sea Gull football team and is working as the conditioning coach as well as the infield coach this year.

The outfield is almost set with two of the three spots going to Dave Shull and Mike Franklin. Tri-captain Shull hit .313 last year with 21 hits and 10 walks. Franklin registered 11 walks and will try to improve his .227 average of last year.

As for the pitching, Deshon says that the hopes to improve on last year's 6.90 ERA.

The team returns senior tri-captain Bill DeAtley, who posted a 4-2 record with three saves in 1993. DeAtley says the pitching staff is looking pretty good. "We are more in shape this year. We're more durable and we've got some guys that can throw more innings." Also returning is senior Pat Facht, who went 2-2 last year and will probably be used as a reliever this season.

Junior Mike Sullivan will return to a full time pitching role this season after 6.1 innings of nearly flawless pitching last year. Newcomers Lee Stanley, Chris Yagesh and Keith Zukowski will round out the staff. Second baseman Derek Yobst will also be used in some short relief situations.

As for behind the plate, junior Ed Stephan and freshman Bill Ewe will both be seeing time.

Deshon seems optimistic about his team this year. "Our goal is to have a winning season. We haven't had one in the last few years. I think this team's make-up

Men's Basketball

Dameon Ross scored 32 points and grabbed 11 rebounds as Salisbury State (9-11) defeated Columbia Union (3-21), 110-102. Josh Mitchell scored a career-high 20 points for the Gulls. Kyle Jefferson pitched in with 17 points and 11 rebounds and Tom Wolfe added 14 points and 12 assists. Earlier in the week, Derrick Johnson scored 34 to lead Trenton State (11-10) to a 90-88 win over SSU in Magg's Gym. SSU led 83-81 with a couple of minutes left but was unable to hold on as Johnson hit back to back three pointers for TSU, giving them the lead for good. Dameon Ross had 25 points to lead SSU and Kyle Jefferson added 18 points and 10 rebounds. On Saturday 18, the Gulls beat Holy Family College 101-89. Dameon Ross led SSU with 27 and Kyle Jefferson scored 22. Tom Wolfe added 20 as the Gull's went 35 for 42 from the free throw line, both season highs.

Women's Basketball

In women's action, SSU (7-13) suffered a 77-72 loss to Wesley College (6-15). Liz Boltz and Yolanda Wilkins scored 24 each to lead Wesley. SSU's Sarah Jones scored 21 and Kristi Kauffman and Kim Roth both had 14 points.

The Gulls will be playing in their refurbished home park. A new scorer's booth/press box has been added behind home plate along with a new astroturf infield.

Having now joined the Capital Athletic Conference, the Gulls must gear up for some challenging conference play. However, there are no first-time opponents on the schedule. Teams like Mary Washington, St. Mary's, York and Catholic are CAC members and long-time opponents.

SSU will face Rutgers/Camden in the season opener on March 5. Deshon's assistant coach of four years, Jeff Dean, is now the head coach at Rutgers/Camden, so this should prove to be an interesting matchup.

Until next week be wary of girls who say they'll date you at drive thrus, love and kisses - TKE.

Alpha Sigma Tau

Welcome back SSU! Keep your eyes peeled for all AST sisters, we're bigger and better than ever! Formal rush starts Feb. 21, so all interested please come and check Greek life out.

Ahead of us this semester are many activities. We're looking forward to "Habitat for Humanity," visiting our adopted granddad "Shorty," participating in Greek Week and much, much more! Our thanks go out to Pi Lambda Phi for a wonderful time at our Valentine's social.

Lastly, our hearts go out to SAE and the friends and family of Jeffery Selser. He was dearly loved and will be deeply missed.

Phi Mu

Another semester has started and those of us who are graduating in May are already counting down the days! Our sisters are ready for another semester of fun! For the past week our Chapter Consultant has been down. We've had a great visit with you Laurie! Thanks for all of your help. Our chapter is busily working on Rush, which started yesterday. It was great meeting all of the girls who came out to the Interest Party. We hope to see you again tomorrow!! If you're interested in joining one of the three sororities on campus, there will be another party tomorrow night at 7:30 pm in the University Center Nanticoke Rm. A, B and C. Come out and bring your friends. If you're interested in having a social, call Jen at 64127 or Mary at 860-1893. Until next time. . .

Sigma Alpha Epsilon

We're back Salisbury! Yet, first and foremost, the Brothers and alumni of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon Fraternity would sincerely like to thank all who consolidated in the memory of the passing of our Brother Jeffery "Skeeter" Selser. Thank all of you to the utmost; he will remain in our souls as he will in yours.

In lieu of all, SAE will overcome and with this in mind, let's talk about RUSH. It's that time of the year again and hey, why don't you check US out; see, we don't JUST DO IT (rush), we JUST DO IT BETTER! Our next event will be tonight, Tues., Feb. 22. We will be meeting in the Pocomoke Hall Basement at 6:30 pm and from there we'll be going to Salisbury Billiards for a little pool action. So, why don't all you guys come out, bring your sticks and put some balls in some pockets! The next event will be Wed., Feb. 23 in Caruthers rm. 118 at 7 pm. If you can't make it, or would like more information, please feel free to call Neal at 546-4090 or mark at 546-4242. Now you know the scoop, what's holding you back? Hey, it's simple, YOU GO ALL THE WAY OR YOU DON'T GO AT ALL. . .

And one last parting shot: If it wasn't for Tonya Harding and tight spandex, would any guy really watch figure skating?
